FOREWORD

The 1963 Carontawan has been published with one aim: to capture the college year 1963 within this book.

Although life at Mansfield is filled with realities, it is also made of intangible substances which are difficult to express in black and white. If this pictorial review of Mansfield 1963 helps to bridge the gap between the past and the present and aids in recalling priceless memories of college days, it is serving its purpose.

With these thoughts, we proudly present to you, the students, your 1963 CARONTAWAN.

“Endeavor as much as you can to keep

LORD CHESTERFIELD

Dear Faculty and Students,

Members of the Class of 1963 have during their four years here seen the start of vast changes at Mansfield State College.

In 1959, they entered a single purpose teacher education college whose curriculum had changed little for decades. Soon they experienced a change in curriculum which greatly strengthened the subject content of their courses. They witnessed first the reorganization of the college into seven departments, then the addition of departments in library science and mathematics, the start of a liberal arts program, and preparation for graduate programs.

When this class arrived, construction of our beautiful new Alumni Building for Library and Administration was less than half completed. At the start of their second year, the building was dedicated by Governor David L. Lawrence.

They spent that second year attending classes in a rather gloomy and shabby East Building so that the Education Center could be renovated. Since then classes have been held in an Education Center so completely refurbished that it seems an entirely new building.

The academic year just past has seen the start of a dramatic building program which will bring new dormitories, total renovation of the East Building, better athletic facilities, a new infirmary and many other improvements.

Great and stimulating as these changes have been, even greater developments are in store. This is fitting, for of all institutions those concerned with education should least fear new ways. In today's accelerated society, education must keep pace with dynamic shifts in science, industry, national defense, commerce, and many other institutions.

We at Mansfield have done our best to meet these challenges and to equip our graduates as thoroughly as possible for their march into the future.

To those who now leave us and to those who come to us in the years ahead, we pledge a continued effort to keep pace.

Good luck and God speed.

Sincerely,

Lewis W. Rathgeber, President

Chairman of Department of Education

The basic purpose of the Education Department is to provide the professional education for prospective teachers. Four areas which constitute this professional education are:

1. The teacher must know how children grow, physically, emotionally, and mentally. He must know how they learn. He must know what drives and abilities they are likely to develop at various stages, and how to measure and exploit these drives and abilities for the good of the individual and society.

2. The teacher must understand how our school system evolved: what developments caused schools to be created; what the relationship of school to society is today, and how this relationship varies from one area to another; and what issues concerning education confront us.

3. The teacher needs a knowledge of materials available for his use in teaching the subjects and grade levels of his speciality. These include a variety of books, periodicals, films, recordings, models, specimens, people—a host of resources of which the average person is unaware. Along with materials of instruction the teacher must be familiar with methods of using them for the education of his charges, as distinguished from their mere entertainment.

4. The prospective teacher should have the actual experience of teaching under the guidance of superior teachers. He should see and experience the application of theory to practice, the use of methods and materials, along with the knowledge he has gained in his academic courses in the education of children.

In addition to a broad general education background and an area of specialization, the study of human development, of methods and materials of instruction, and of the function of the teacher in a free society, are important to a teacher education program.

Chairman of the Department of Health and Physical Education

It is the hope and aim of this department to stimulate and encourage students to self-motivation, to become proficient in team and individual sport activities; that will give the student a life-long source of happy and pleasurable experiences of adult living.

The values and cultural aspects of skills, taken through the individual and basic sports and games activities, are essential in that they provide and enlarge opportunities and many varied social situations which are conducive to developing initiative, leadership, self-control, courage, loyalty, fair-play, sportsmanship, friendliness, courtesy, obedience to rules and officials, as well as providing fun and recreation.

The student may accomplish the above by participation in health, physical education, recreation, intramural activities, intercollegiate athletics, and women's Sports Day. Organizations associated with this department include the Varsity "M" Club, the Women's Athletic Association, and the Men's Recreation Association.

This year wrestling and track have been added to the intercollegiate program and additional emphasis has been placed on recreational activities including co-recreation. In this expansion and improvement of the program, a number of staff members have been added to the department.

An intercollegiate schedule in baseball, basketball, football, golf, track, and wrestling is maintained by the College and supervised by this department.

Chairman of the Department of Home Economics

Home Economics Education today provides for liberal studies designed to elevate taste, to cultivate a sense of values and to develop the capacity for logical thinking. Home Economics in the future will be focused on home and family life marked by mobility, affluence, leisure, and young parenthood: The majority of women will be both wage earner and homemaker. Higher education in home economics affords preparation for the roles played by the home economics graduate—that of becoming a home economics teacher and preparation for being a home maker and member of the community.

At Mansfield the Bachelor of Science degree in Vocational Home Economics Education is awarded to all graduates. This degree enables them to teach home Economics in the Pennsylvania Secondary Schools.

Home economics students may belong to the college section of the American Home Economics Association, the local chapter is Omicron Gamma Pi, and to honorary home economics society, Kappa Omicron Phi.

Acting Chairman of the Department of Humanities

The aims of the Humanities Department are individual distinction and a more liberal education.

A broader and more varied curriculum has been opened to the Mansfield student. Specializations in a particular field are still being pursued but with more courses required in the liberal arts. The student now has a wider range from which to choose in languages, literature, drama, speech, and art. This can be done primarily because of the careful adaptation and the modifications that have evolved in the past year.

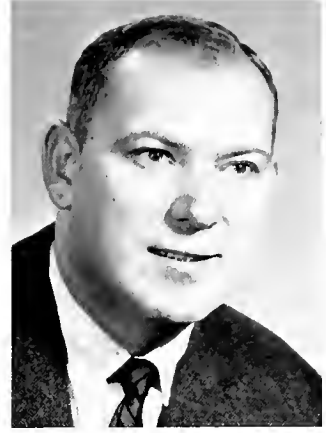

The members of the Humanities Department offer the courses and themselves to help students develop intellectually and to find enriched, esthetic experience.

Chairman of the Department of Music

The Music Department occupies a prominent position at Mansfield. The Department plays a vital role in campus activities: assembly programs; band, orchestra, and chorus concerts; vesper services; recitals; parades; well sings; dances; fine arts festival; and summer workshops.

The training of teachers for the purpose of furthering music disciplines in public schools is the primary aim of the Department. In addition to general education courses, music students are given instruction and practice in harmony, theory, conducting, and orchestration. Valuable experience is provided through individual and class instruction and through participation in various musical groups, instrumental and vocal.

The Department has undergone a change in curriculum which began with this year's freshman class. A major and minor are now required of each student.

Music organizations present opportunities for a student to put his learning to practice. The opera workshop, chorus, wind ensemble, orchestra, and brass ensemble enhance the cultural environment on campus. Tours made by the wind ensemble and the opera workshop promote public relations for the college as well as provide professional experience for its students.

Chairman of the Department of Library Science

The opportunities available in librarianship are unlimited. As a career it offers the challenging role of working with books and other materials in guiding people to lead richer, more useful, and better lives. Now and within the next few years there will be thousands of jobs open as schools fulfill the state requirements for school libraries.

The Department of Library Science, one of the newest on the campus, is primarily concerned with the preparation of school librarians for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The program is also designed for effective articulation with graduate work in the field of library science.

This year the department evaluated and reorganized the curriculum, reducing the required number of hours of library science from thirty to twenty-four hours. Students are now expected to attain a greater depth of knowledge in another subject area. Proficiency in a modern foreign language is a requirement of the new program.

For the first time the department has a full-time teacher who offers the courses especially designed for the training of school librarians. Saturday classes and late afternoon classes are offered for librarians and teachers from the surrounding area. Tapes prepared in classes devoted to story-telling and book reviews are broadcast regularly over neighborhood radio stations.

Cognizant of the need for high-calibre teachers and of the curricular reform in secondary school mathematics, the Mathematics Department has revised the mathematics courses via considerable modification and modernization. The objective is to present a modern treatment of traditional mathematics in addition to presenting the latest innovations.

Providing undergraduate training for the prospective advanced-degree student and presenting service courses to augment various other college curricula are adjuncts to the primary purpose of training prospective secondary teachers.

Chairman of Social Science Department

The Department of Social Sciences encompasses five distinct disciplines: Economics, Geography, History, Political Science, and Sociology. By offering courses in each of these important study areas, it makes an important contribution to the college curriculum.

In addition to its responsibility for general education social science courses, required of all students, the department affords several areas of specialization. At the present time these include geography, history, and social studies. The latter program of study integrates all five of the disciplines covered by the department. It is particularly designed for students who are preparing to teach a general social science curriculum in the secondary schools. Those whose major fields of study are in other departments of the college may, if they choose, elect social science courses to form a secondary field of concentration.

Present plans of the college to introduce a liberal arts program in the near future will inevitably affect the organization and responsibility of the department. While the training of high school social science teachers will continue to be a significant departmental function, it will also be necessary to establish curricula suitable for those who become candidates for the liberal arts degree. Among other considerations, movement in this direction will involve greater emphasis upon the fields of economics, political science and sociology. Another development for the future will be the introduction of study in anthropology.

The Department of Science

This year the Science Department began its operations as a separate and independent division. The expanded program of the Department now requires the services of seven full-time staff members. Endeavoring to provide Mansfield State College students with a way of obtaining a broad scientific background, as well as sufficient depth in specialized disciplines, courses are being continually improved and added.

An example of these opportunities, now available to non-science majors, is the introduction of laboratory experiences in Man and the Biological World and in Man and the Physical Universe. For those students enrolled as majors in specific fields of science, several new and advanced courses have been added, including Advanced Organic Chemistry, Atomic Age Physics, and Embryology. To develop creative thinking, science students are being encouraged to undertake original research. This growth has been the responsibility of the entire Science Staff which operates as a committee under the elected chairmanship of Dr. Schappelle.

Seniors' Lament —

We are in the twilight of our days at Mansfield State College. As our work draws to a close, it is appropriate that we each make a personal judgment of what Mansfield has meant to us, and in turn, what we have meant to it.

Our future will be based to a great extent upon the learning we have acquired in our four years. During these four full years, our class has endeavored to leave its mark on Mansfield through its academic and social performance. Although we are taking much from our college, it is not without contributing something of ourselves to it.

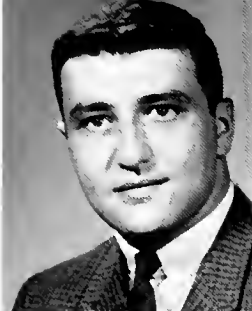

To say the road ahead will be a smooth one would be utter disillusionment. To say that it will be challenging and sometimes frightening is more within the bounds of reality. That we will face our tasks with hope, confidence, and faith is the reasonable expectation of our Alma Mater.

As we look back upon our years here at Mansfield, we have both bitter and sweet remembrances. Let us carry into the world the experiences that we've had. May they help us to become useful members of society and to achieve personal success in our endeavors.

Debate Team

The good debater has been trained in a tradition which equips him for the poll booth, for the scholar's desk, and for the armchair critique. He has been trained for intellectual decisions; he knows how to hew out truths—materials for building houses to higher truth.

Since 1960, Mansfield State College has been building the builders in a liberal tradition which goes back, for example, to 1923, when a Mansfield team successfully defended the rights of labor unions. Their trophy hangs in the Hut.

Over the past three years, the Debate Team has tripled its activities and its budget, its members, and advisers. In 1960-61, there were two practice debates, two tournaments, and one exhibition. There were five debaters and one adviser. In 1961-62, ten debaters worked in four full tournaments and one practice debate, under the direction of two advisers. In 1962-63, as this report was being published, the Mansfield Debate Team had distinguished themselves in an exhibition, in three practice debates, and in three tournaments, with at least five tournaments planned for the spring semester. There were two new advisers, making a total of three, and the membership had grown to fifteen.

The Mansfield Debate Team holds out a cordial hand to students with a good point average who would like to come out for oratory or extemporaneous speaking or debating. Rational argument makes an exhilarating sport. Topics discussed help prepare the student for a career in jurisprudence, as well as for the pursuit of personal culture.

The Debate Team takes part in its first Awards Assembly on Tuesday, May 7, 1963. Also planned is the installation of a chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha Fraternity, the most selective debate society in the nation.

External honors enhance to a team member his growth in humility and humor. George Witt, Team President for 1962-63, in pointing out Mansfield's victories over Bucknell, Cornell, the University of Pennsylvania, and Syracuse University, did not fail to add that "we have been defeated by a host of others."

For those students who aspire to the seats of law and learning, the Mansfield Debate Team offers a chance at that enviable name which tradition has bestowed on the bene disputator—the good debater.

Flashlight

The Flashlight, organized some thirty-nine years ago, has since been the regularly published campus newspaper, bringing the important news events concerning the college as well as human interest items and humor in its features.

Several changes were made in the format of the paper this year, each aiming toward the ultimate goal of a newspaper of more timely and higher quality news coverage. The first change was from the use of glossy book paper to that of newsprint; the second was in size of format, with a reduction from eight pages to four pages; and the third was an increase in the frequency of publication.

The Flashlight is a member of the Associated Collegiate Press and the Columbia Scholastic Press. The paper is printed by D. Lee Stoddard, publisher of the Elkland Journal, Elkland, Pennsylvania.

"I pledge

My head to clearer thinking
 My heart to greater loyalty
 My hands to larger service and
 My health to better living

For my club, my community, and my country."

German Club

Informality is the keynote of the newly organized German Club. The casual atmosphere of the meetings might seem to veil the purpose of the organization—to know more of the rich heritage of German culture.

Germany and the German language is brought closer to the members as they view films, learn of German contributions to art and music, sing German folk songs, and study various other aspects of German culture.

Under the direction of Mr. Zulak, professor of German, who has lived and taught in Germany, some fifty members join in the learning and festivities. The club is indeed proof that the study of a language entails more than the learning of grammatical rules, but also involves a detailed study of the life of the people whose mother tongue is being learned.

Kappa Phi

Kappa Phi is a Christian organization for women only. Membership is open to all college women of Methodist faith or Methodist preference. Although the club has Greek letters, it is not a sorority. It is a national organization which includes about thirty-six chapters. Mansfield's chapter is the Alpha Zeta Chapter of Kappa Phi.

The purpose of the organization is to educate and thereby enrich and deepen personal and religious lives so that members can live Christianity through church and community service. By strong friendship and close ties of sisterhood, each person tries to help the other achieve the qualities of Christian life.

Some of the services include a complete church service given by the girls, a Yule Tide Service at Christmas, an annual Banquet, a meal in the Upper Room at Easter, the responsibility of taking care of the church nursery, and a helper in the M.Y.F. movement.

Miss Carol Browning, past music chairman and First Vice-President, and presently music chairman, was elected as Gamma Kora (eastern division of Kappa including some fifteen chapters) First Vice-President for 1964. She also composed the song that was chosen to be the National Kappa Phi theme song for 1963.

Marching Band

Mansfield's football games would not be complete without the colorful spectacle of the Mansfield Marching Band. Under the stellar direction of Mr. Bertram Francis, Associate Professor of Music, and assisted by Mr. John Baynes, the M.S.C. Marching Band continued to uphold its reputation as one of the finest organizations in the East. Under the baton of Head Drum Majorette, Waneta Easterbrook, the M.S.C. Marching Band delighted and amazed football fans with its intricate maneuvers and displays of precision and advanced technique.

Adding to school and team spirit, the band journeyed with the team to Bloomsburg and Lock Haven games. The fans were also pleased with the added spark provided by the new uniforms acquired by the band.

A special acclaim is accorded to the majorette unit consisting of the corps headed by Sandy James and the fire-baton soloist, Donna Marinkov.

At this year's Homecoming a special tribute was paid to Bertram Francis for his many years of service to Mansfield State College in the development of high standards of music and for the inspiring leadership given to his students.

Renaissance Singers

The Renaissance Singers is an organization of a selected group of music students who enjoy singing chamber music that is not suitable for a large chorus. The music ranges from the time of early Renaissance to the present day. This group of singers participates in public concerts and recitals on and off campus and has an important part in the annual spring choral festival.

Woodwind Quintet

The Woodwind Quintet consists of a select group of outstanding performers on woodwind instruments. The organization gives these students an opportunity to increase their enjoyment and understanding of chamber music by playing in limited campus recitals and in occasional off-campus engagements, and to become acquainted with this type of music literature.

Football

Mansfield's varsity football squad, under the mentorship of new head coach, Robert Moore, opened the '62 season with a squad of sixty-five gridders. Aided by Coaches Tom Costello and Melvin Dry, Coach Moore put the Mounties through many grid paces which were unfamiliar at M.S.C.

Using a four platoon system whenever possible, the strength of the Mountie lines centered around four senior linemen, Joe Vecellio, Tom Buckheit, Russ Downey, and John Sukenik. "Snuffy" Sukenik was individually honored by being selected to the starting roster of the All Conference Team. The season was a rather disappointing one, seeing the Mounties lose tilts which should have been theirs from the opening kick-off. In what was considered the best Mountie showing of the season, the M.S.C. men fought a heavily favored East Stroudsburg squad tooth and nail, only to lose this game which was labeled a "moral victory."

Basketball

Cinderellamen in the eyes of everyone in the state, save the loyal Mountaineers who were all sure of their potential from the beginning, the Mounties captured another Eastern Division State College Conference pennant.

Co-captain Charlie Griscavage, one of M.S.C.'s all-time clutch performers, graduated at mid-season. Regulars: Co-captain, Terry Crouthamel, Tom Wallon, Joe Russell, Bud Hulser, Lee Felsburg, and Paul Manilowski filled in the gap left by the "Tiger" by utilizing the winning attitude, hustle and desire.

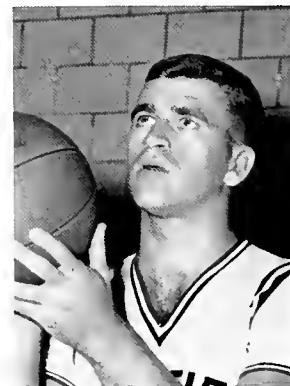

Coach William Gibson saw his charges record his 100th college coaching victory by defeating the fast moving Bloomsburg State five on the opponent's court. Coincidentally, this court is known as the "Centennial Gym."

Capturing the State College Conference Championship could again put Mansfield into the N.A.I.A. playoffs.

Baseball

The '62 baseball season was primarily a building year, six out of nine positions being filled by freshmen. Denny Kubasko was the Mounties' leading hitter, closely followed by Edward Kimmel. Power hitter was Roger Wetzel. Pitching was smartly handled by Jim Tomallo, Jack Fetchkan and Bud Hulser. Returning to the mound for next year will be Jack Fetchkan, Bud Hulser, Tom Wallon, and Bill Nichols. With the return of able veterans, the coming seasons promise a better than good outlook.

Under the guidance of Coach Marian "Spotts" Decker, Mansfield's varsity linksmen faced a rebuilding season in '62. The M.S.C. men did their best, but a lack of skill and depth proved to be too great an obstacle to overcome. The Mounts recorded a 0-4-1 season. With a match against Scranton University being cancelled, the 1962 season sported a light schedule. Home field for Mansfield is the Corey Creek Country Club.

Wrestling Team

There is a new feature on Mansfield's sports scene. Wrestling has had a rebirth on campus. After years of absence from the many sports available to students for their participation, it has made a vigorous return under the mentorship of Coach Wallace Maurer, former Penn State mat ace.

Coach Maurer this year trained some twenty Mountie Men, mostly freshmen, as the building block for future teams. Next season, several transfer students will be eligible. This will enable the team to slate a full schedule of State College competition.

Mansfield started the 1963 season against Brockport. Since this first match, the team has gained strength and hopes are high for making wrestling one of our full time spectator sports.

In the two official meets held, Mansfield lost to Brockport (28 to 6) and to East Stroudsburg (31 to 5). Practice meets were held with Bucknell and Corning Community College as the opponents.

Our Cotillion

Lionel Hampton, born in Louisville, Kentucky, has been steeped in music all his life. His first big achievement in music was doing an occasional turn on the big drum for a children's band in Chicago. Later, he decided to satisfy a long-standing ambition by studying the piano, and played with various bands in the role of drummer and pianist.

In 1934 he formed his own band, and in Los Angeles' Cotton Club Hampton's reputation as a virtuoso spread quickly.

Lionel Hampton has been "messing around" with jazz since his birth as an expert on the vibraphone, drums, and piano.

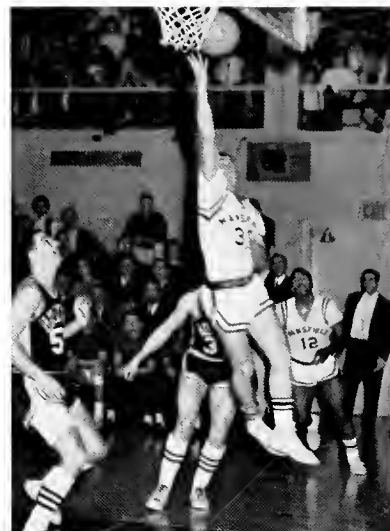

As one of America's foremost band leaders, he has explored the world of jazz with thoroughness and enthusiasm. He has been exposed to every form of jazz—ragtime, blues, dixieland, swing, bop, be-bop, and rock and roll. His talents as a bandleader extend to all of these forms, and he can match his skill with the most distinguished jazzmen.

As the editor of the 1963 Carontawan, I wish to thank the editors, their staff members, and our adviser, Dr. Mildred Menge. This yearbook was made possible by their many, many hours of work. It is very difficult for a non-staff member to realize the efforts necessary to prepare a yearbook for publication. This process requires much collaboration and diligent work. Although we had a very small staff this year, they concerted their efforts to produce your yearbook. A special thanks goes to our photographer; for it is the picture which we have painted that was foremost in our efforts.

You, the student body, also deserve a word of praise; for without you there would be no Carontawan, nor any need for one. In fact, without you there would be no college. But, because you have chosen to further your education, there is a Mansfield State College and you will want to remember your "college days" here. Thank you for helping us to capture parts of your lives within this yearbook. I hope that it will serve to bring back many pleasant memories of M.S.C.

It has been an honor and a pleasure to serve as Carontawan Editor. This has certainly been a rewarding and exciting experience for me. I only hope that you will enjoy your 1963 Carontawan and treasure it always.

Diane L. Hess, Editor of the 1963 Carontawan
